Group 2

Tuomas Salomäki

1. Availability and Accessibility

All of the content is fitted to one page, so availability and accessibility are good. Top header menu allows user to navigate to specific topic.

2. Clarity

Site is clear. The top header tells the user that what the site is about. The content is divided to four subheadings, which describe the content. There is also a small description about the content below the header menu, which sums up the meaning of the site. There is no actual content yet, but probably every section should be divided to subsections when developing the site further.

3. Learnability

The site is at this point very minimalistic, and the functioning of the site can be understood at one look

4. Credibility

Based on layout the site is credible. In case of informative nature of the site, references and background information about the authors of the site could be enhancing the credibility.

5. Relevancy

The subject for the site is very relevant